Step 1: With the fuchsia cord, make a four strand double cow's hitch. See our tutorial for instructions. Insert the black cord through the knots on the working end with equal length on each side.

Step 2: Bring the left black cord up through the middle of the bracelet then cross it over the two left strands.

Step 3: Wrap the same black cord around and insert it up between the two left cords then down through the middle of the bracelet.

Step 4: Repeat steps 2 and 3 with the right black cord on the right side.
Step 5: Insert the left black cord up between the right cords and through the middle of the right loop. Repeat with the right black cord on the left side.

Step 6: Tighten both sides leaving slightly loose. Bring both black cords and insert them down in the space above where they cross. Tighten again.

Repeat steps 2 through 6 until you reach the end of the bracelet. Try to end with step 6.

Step 7: Attach a fid to the fuchsia cord and insert it down through the black loop on the side at a downward angle so the needle is below the black in the back.

Continue repeating step 7 down both sides of the bracelet until you reach the end. Then trim and melt all ends.

This made a 9 ½ inch bracelet that is almost 1 ½ inches wide.
