Step 1: Make a four strand double cow's hitch with your black cord. See our tutorial for instructions. Insert the other two cords through the knots on the working end as shown.

Step 2: Bring the right coyote cord over the two right core strands and under the two left core strands.

Step 3: Bring the left coyote cord over the left two core strands and under the right two strands as shown.

Step 4: Bring the swamp snake cord up between the core strands and lay them across the coyote cords as shown.
Repeat steps 2 through 7

Step 5: Bring each swamp snake cord behind the two core strands on each side.

Step 6: Insert the left black cord up through the space between the two left core strands and between the other two color strands.

Step 7: Repeat step 6 with the right black cord.

Tighten by pulling the strands outward and push up toward the buckle.

Try to keep your cords tight as you go and take out the slack when you can from previous rows. Continue repeating until you reach the end of your bracelet.
Once you reach the end, bring all cords to the back and weave them through. Then trim and melt the ends.

This made a 9 inch bracelet and is about 1 ¼ inch wide.
