Step 1: Fold one cord in half and measure about 8-9 inches from the middle. This will be one side of the necklace. Cross the cords where you measured so it forms a loop.

Step 2: Make sure the right side of your first cord is the working end pointing up and the left working end pointing down. Bring your second cord behind your first cord until the middle rests under where you marked your length.

Repeat steps 3-5 one or three times then add another bead. Continue the same pattern. Once you have finished adding beads, tie the same number of knots as you did at the beginning.

Once your knots are tied, trim two of your cords so the remaining two point the same direction as your starting two. Melt the trimmed ends and smooth them flat.

You can add additional beads to each end if desired to help close the gap between the two cords.

Insert the two strands into one side of the pop barrel connector and tie or melt the cords together to keep them from pulling back out. Repeat with the other side.

This necklace can be made with larger sizes of cord, but may need larger barrel connectors to secure. We used about ten feet of Type 1 paracord for this necklace that measures about 18 inches from end to end or about 8.5 inches long.
